Late Report States Key to Russian Position
Has Been Captured—Stoessel Killed.

MERELY AN UNFOUNDED REPORT

Definite News From the Far East Points to a Decided Japanese Victory, Although They Have Lost Very Heavily.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

Chefoo, Aug. 24.—A widely circulated rumor is current here that Port Arthur is in the hands of the Japanese.

The report says that when General Stoessel saw the end had come and there was no longer any hope of staying the Japanese advance he led in person a desperate charge against the Japanese column which had captured the Etse Hills forts and was killed, the command of the fortress devolving on General Fock, who succeeded to the inevitable and surrendered to Marshal Oyama.

It is further reported that the Russian warships in the harbor were sunk by order of Admiral Ooshitomi after he had decided that to make a sortie would simply mean the sacrifice of his men with no compensating gain. These reports come from Chinese sources and are accepted here with reserve.

There seems to be no doubt that the Japanese have captured the Etse forts and there is reason to believe they have taken the Golden Hill position. These two positions are the keys to Port Arthur on the west and east respectively, and with them in the hands of the enemy it will be impossible for the Russians to hold out. The Japanese guns can pound the whole city to pieces at their leisure.

Considerable excitement has been caused here by a report that the Japanese intend to land a force here to destroy the Russian wireless telegraph station at this place. The Japanese have made repeated protests against the station as a violation of neutrality and it is said propose to destroy it themselves.

Will Withdraw.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—The news which reached here yesterday to the effect that General Kurapatkin has determined to withdraw from Southern Manchuria and concentrate on Harbin, while not unexpected, has caused some disappointment. The hope has existed that by some means it would be possible for him to defeat the Japanese and go to the relief of Port Arthur.

Military men are united in approval of the plan to make Harbin the base and concentrate there an army which will in the next campaign recapture the ground which has been lost in this.

As foreshadowed in these dispatches the plan to send the Baltic fleet to the seat of war has been abandoned for the present at least.

It is learned that the czar is greatly disposed toward peace, and when the gathering of royalty for the enlisting of the Czarovitch assembled it is not at all improbable that there will be conferences looking to the devising of some plan by which Russia can retire with some grace from a situation which the most sanguine are beginning to regard as hopeless.

Wants News

Washington, Aug. 24.—Acting Secretary of State Adre has called Minister Conger and Consul Goodnow at Shanghai and Fowler at Chifoo to send immediate and detailed reports on the Japanese-Russian situation. Instructions were sent in the same message that the representatives of the United States should do everything in their power to protect American interests.

No instructions have been given by either the state or navy departments, officials say, to American representatives to preserve Chinese neutrality. In the event of the hostilities within neutral harbors the consuls and Rear Admiral Stirling are expected to cooperate to preserve the lives and property of Americans.

Secretary Hay, who is at Sunapee, N. H., is in communication with the department and a direct wire from the white house to Oyster Bay is used to keep the president informed of developments.

KEMP TO QUIT HIS POST ANYWAY

Wisconsin Administration Is Said to Already Regard the Place as Vacant.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)
Madison, Aug. 24.—The latest announcement in the state treasuryship imbroglio is that, in spite of State Treasurer Kemp's dropping Messrs. Dulac and Blecher, the administration view is that Mr. Kemp is out of office. It is asserted that, having failed to file the increased bond demanded, the office is vacant, and any acts of Mr. Kemp now will be legal only as he is de facto state treasurer. It was said Saturday that Kemp had made his peace with the governor.

Bond Increase Refused.
According to a dispatch from Madison today, the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland refused to increase Kemp's bond from $250,000 to $600,000, giving as its reason that it was not its policy to increase an official's bond during his term of office. The governor ordered Kemp to give the increased bond three weeks ago, and under the statutes he had only ten days in which to comply. He has applied to another surety company for the bond. He today transferred the civil refund of $458,000, over the disposition of which there has been much controversy, to a special fund, and will keep it intact until the legislature or the courts decide what shall be done with it.

ANOTHER ATHLETE SECURES HONORS

Admirable Plan of the Governor in Educating the Young Is Shown
Recent Appointment.

(Special to The Gazette.)
Madison, Wis., Aug. 24.—Governor La Follette has appointed Carl F. Hensel, a former Wisconsin university baseball star, as district attorney for Trempealeau county, to fill a vacancy caused by death. Mr. Hensel is a recent graduate of the university law school and an ardent supporter of the governor.

This is another instance in which the well-known favor of Governor La Follette for athletic young men is particularly university men is displayed. The executive has freely allowed out capital positions to university boys to add them in making their way through the educational institution and it is said that they, by praiseworthy means, always return help to the governor in politics. Through this system, extended over a period of years, Governor La Follette has materially strengthened himself with a large following of well educated and exceedingly active young men throughout the state.

WHY IS STATE BANKRUPT NOW?

Withdrawal of War Fund Explodes the Lesser Taxation Bubble of the Governor.

FINANCE VS. POLITICAL HUMBUG

People Deluded by Promise of No Taxation, Must Now
Suffer From Administration's Extravagance in Running Affairs.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 24.—The withdrawal of the war fund of $158,000 from the general fund and the placing of the money in the trust funds has placed the state administration up against the proposition of where to get the money with which to run the state government from now until June 30, 1905.

It is said there is only about $600,000 with which to meet the general expenses of the state from now until June 30. The disbursements during that period in round figures will amount to $1,800,000, so it can be seen the money must be raised somewhere if the state remains on a cash basis after Nov. 1.

The administration is figuring on the $650,000 additional taxes, which the tax commission says the railways must pay to aid the situation. This will not be available anyway before October, and even with its help there will only be money enough to run the government until February.

INFANT HEIR TO RUSSIAN THRONE BAPTISED TODAY

The Czar Celebrates the Event by Issuing a Wonderful Proclamation of Amnesty.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—With pomp and ceremony the heir of the Russian throne was baptized in the palace Church of Peterhof today. The assemblage of diplomatic corps and royalty who witnessed the ceremony was a brilliant one. The child was anointed and immersed in holy water by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg. After the ceremony the manifesto of the czar on the birth of his son was published.

This is the greatest act of mercy since the serfs were emancipated by the present czar's grandfather, and the most sweeping act of general pardon exercised since the days of ancient Rome.

The manifesto is a lengthy document, and bestows many other royal favors in addition to the condoning of political offenses.

The manifesto is introduced in the following message to the people:

Message of Liberty.

"By the will of God, we, the czar and autocrat of all the Russias, czar of Poland, grand duke of Finland, etc., announce to our faithful subjects that on this, the Christening day of our son and heir, the Grand Duke Alexis Nikolaevitch, following the promptings of our heart, turn to our great family of the empire and, with the deepest and most heartfelt pleasure, even amidst these times of national struggle and difficulty, bestow upon them some gifts of our royal favor for their greater enjoyment in their daily lives.

"Given at Peterhof on this, the eleventh day of August, 1904.

"NICHOLAS."

Effect Will Be Widespread.

The general effect of that part of the decree granting amnesty to political offenders will be felt from one end of the empire to the other, for there is not a district, or hardly a commune, that is not represented by an exile beyond the Ural mountains.

It would be hard to estimate the number of prisoners affected, but there are thousands of them, most of whom were sent away as a matter of public policy from the Muscovite standpoint, and comparatively few of whom are charged with homicide.

Remits the fines imposed upon the rural and urban communes of Finland which refused to submit to military conscription in 1902 and 1903.

Remits the fines imposed upon the Jewish communes in the cases of Jews avoiding military service.

The manifesto further provides for a general reduction in sentence for common law offenses.

CHICAGO RESTRAINED FROM ENFORCING THE NEW LAWS

Packers Have Gained a Decided Victory Over the Strikers in the Court of Justice.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.)

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Judge Brennan today granted the application for an injunction restraining the strikers from enforcing the new laws. The judge declared the prospects of winning training the city from enforcing the new laws. He based his order for the evacuation of the stock-yards business. He said they strike-breakers. It is said the injunction is granted in the interests of peace, and the business interests of the city. The strikers expect a libel suit to leave the yards every night.

WALKING FROM COAST TO COAST

NEGRO PASSES THROUGH CITY ON WAY TO NEW YORK.

BIG PURSE FOR THE WINNER

Has Made a Long Trip Thus Far, and Has Many Miles More to Go Before He Wins.

J. Mott, a negro, passed through Janesville last evening on his way from San Francisco to New York. He is being backed by the Muttie club of San Francisco against a Swede, who is walking by another route and is backed by another San Francisco club. Each of the men are to walk four thousand nine hundred and seventy-six miles. The shortest routes are not used but the two routes they are following were picked out by the club members before the contestants started on their long trip, and contain an equal number of miles. Mott traveled east by way of the Yellowstone park, Salt Lake City, through Nebraska to Omaha, across Iowa to Dubuque and then through Lancaster, Dodgeville, and Madison to Janesville. He followed the St. Paul track from Madison to Janesville and from this city went to Beloit from which city he is to walk into Milwaukee and thence to Chicago.

His Opponent
Nine months time is allowed for the trip. The two walkers started March 1 and have until Dec. 1. Extra time is allowed, however, for days lost by bad weather. Mr. Mott has been unable to travel on 26 days for this reason. The man that reaches New York first wins. Eighty per cent of a $12,000 purse goes to him, the loser getting the rest. Each club pays all the expenses of its contestant. Mr. Mott is allowed $2 a week. This is sent him regularly. Teetzel is the name of the Swede's opponent. He is not the man who started, however. The first one was taken sick with yellow fever and Teetzel took his place. Mott has not been sick a day and is in the best of health.

Big Purse
He has already won a neat sum. A side bet of $12,000 was made by some San Francisco sports on a part of the distance he has already gone over. Mott won and receives a share of the money. Another bet was made that he would walk from Omaha to Detroit in a certain time. As he is two days ahead of this time, he is practically sure of winning this.

From 33 to 42 miles are traveled by the African daily. From six in the morning until six at night he walks, only stopping for meals. Often on pleasant nights he covers a few extra miles. In this way he has gained on the other man as in the south it is unhealthful to walk at night on account of malaria. Mott walks from 12 to 14 hours every day in the week, Sunday included. Since he has been so much in the lead he has given Teetzel a handicap by not starting out on every Monday until 10 o'clock. Teetzel had a bad time getting through Florida swamps, this being one reason for his slower progress. Mott travels about five miles an hour.

Near Railroads
The two men are not allowed to get more than two miles from the railroad. Mott has walked the tracks most of the time. This condition of the tracks has a good deal to do with the speed he can make. He chose the Milwaukee road on which to walk to Janesville, because he was told the ballast was smoother.

Gravel is naturally hard on shoes and Mott is wearing his eighth pair. These are beginning to go through at the soles and a new pair will be waiting for him at Beloit. He carries nothing with him but what he has on.

Wonderful Physique
A person in making such a record breaking walk must have a wonderful physique. Mott certainly has one. He weighs 172 pounds, not an ounce of which is superfluous fat. His muscles are of enormous size and are like steel. After walking steadily for nearly six months he is still as fresh as when he started. When he left Madison yesterday morning his gait was such that an ordinary man would be tired after walking a block.

J. Mott was born in Sidney, Australia and is 42 years old. His father is a minister and is still preaching there. His grandparents came from South Africa. They are still living.

All Over the World
This interesting negro has been all over the world. He was an ivory hunter in South Africa for 6 or 7 years. He has lived in Australia, London and Constantinople. He speaks 7 languages besides 22 dialects spoken in South Africa. He has been in walking marches ever since he was 21. He has been an interpreter at times and his services are in demand. He has been asked to go to Africa as a scout, but he prefers to do the same other way than from wild beasts.

About 9 years ago Mott won $16,720 by winning a walking race between Liverpool and Paris. He was backed in this by a London newspaper. By finishing so far ahead of the others he received both first and second money. He has also done

LIVING HAPPILY EVER AFTERWARD

Are Nels Swain and Bride He Claimed in Lion's Den at Elks' Carnival.

Nels Swain, who resides on a farm between Janesville and Beloit, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Swain cherishes only the most pleasing recollections of the Elks' Carnival—so abhorrent to Alderman Merritt. The supreme happiness that he has known dates back to that bewildering pageant of beauty and frivolity, and for him the tenderest memories will ever cling to one certain lion's cage wherein a benign justice of the peace spoke those wondrous words that linked his life and fortune with those of the brave little woman he loved. Mr. Swain came to the city to secure a picture of the event which he had understood was in Judge Earle's possession. When asked if matrimony with such auspicious beginnings had proved a success he answered enthusiastically: "You bet!"

"SAN TOY" NOTES.

In pursuance of his policy to present musical comedy on the most perfect possible scale when he first embarked in this line of effort, Mr. John C. Fisher, who has this season added "San Toy" to his string of successes and will present it shortly in this city, will carry the complete orchestra in addition to the immense organization necessary for its interpretation. It will cost Mr. Fisher over a thousand dollars a week to include the orchestra in the roster of his company, but his experience has evidently proved to him that the expense is justified.

James T. Powers, a comedian who has done a great many things in comic opera and musical comedy that have caused playgoers to hold him in cordial remembrance, is best known by his genuinely clever characterization of "L.J." in "San Toy." With the exception of New York and a few of the principal outlying cities, Mr. Powers has never appeared in the part, and the announcement that he is at the head of the big company which John C. Fisher will send to this city the present season constitutes an item of exceptional interest to fan-lovers.

It was no easy matter for John C. Fisher to get hold of "San Toy" this season for an extensive road tour. There was much competition among managers for the property, but the fact that Mr. Fisher chanced to control the services of James T. Powers, who scored such a distinct success in the role of "L.J." when the play was first produced, weighed heavily in his favor with the executors of the Daly estate and eventually resulted in Mr. Fisher securing it. The Daly interests being particularly anxious that Mr. Powers play his original part. In addition to Mr. Powers, Mr. Fisher will present a number of other members of the original American cast.

SEVERAL CHEESES AND YANKEE CORN

Comprise Wisconsin's Agricultural Exhibit at St. Louis—So Say Rock County Visitors.

Rock county visitors returning from the St. Louis exposition, particularly farmers and tobacco men, continue to grumble at the meagre showing made by Wisconsin in the agricultural exhibits. They say that the rich farming section of the state is represented only by a few cheeses and several miserable ears of Yankee corn. Some of the northern counties which raise pumpkins and potatoes on the sand flats had a population of about one man to the acre, make pretentious showings for which hustling land agents are doubtless responsible. Illinois and Indiana show up as great tobacco growing states. Some Rock county people had to go way to St. Louis to find out that they raised tobacco in Indiana. Meanwhile Wisconsin, the premier cigar leaf producing state in the union, is represented by not a single fraction of a tobacco plant. Last spring the Leaf Tobacco Dealers' Association of the state met in this city and among other things raised about $1,000 in subscriptions for a fund to enable the state to make some kind of a showing in this line. As $1,000 had been set aside from the state appropriation for dairy interests there was no apparent reason why private individuals should go into their pockets for a tobacco exhibit. But they offered to. No one ever came around for the money and no effort was made on the part of anybody to have the exhibit sent on. What became of the state appropriation for exhibiting its varied industries at the exposition is a mystery to everyone who visits St. Louis. There are some excellent individual exhibits made by the Fairbanks Morse Co. of Beloit, the Parker Pen Co. of this city, and others, but Wisconsin might be off the map so far as the state showing is concerned.

LITTLE HOPE FOR TAX REDUCTION

FIGURES MAY BE COMPLETED
TOO LATE FOR APPEAL.

SUPERVISORS AT MADISON

Wilbur F. Carle and A. C. Powers
Talked with Commission—Old
Valuations Were Burned.

Wilbur F. Carle of this city and A. C. Powers of Beloit, members of the state tax commission in Madison yesterday to acquit that body of the reasons why the figures of the tax apportionment for 1903 for Rock county are regarded as excessive and all out of proportion both to the actual wealth existing in this region and the apportionment made for other neighboring counties. When seen this morning Mr. Carle was very reticent. He would only state that they were treated with much consideration and allowed to depart without an overabundance of hope that the reductions asked for this year would be made.

Burned in Capital Fire

It is known, however, that when the visitors asked to see the figures and tabulations employed in arriving at a fifteen million dollar personal property tax apportionment for Rock county in 1903 they were sadly informed that these, along with so many other things, were burned in the capital fire. It is also known that when they asked about this year's figures they were informed that they had not yet been made out, that they would not be until late in September, and that as a usual thing appeals were not to be taken after the first of that month. All of this bad news the tax commission broke very gently and very courteously.

Sixty per Cent Rise

This was a good deal like telling a man condemned to death without a trial that there is some doubt as to whether he will be allowed to bring on his witnesses, even after he is hung. The tax commission was very considerate and even seemed, itself, to feel somewhat grieved over the situation. In 1903 the county assessors found personal property to the amount of $6,522,635. The state tax commission found $10,000,000 in 1903 numbers, an increase of about 123 per cent. It strikes the county board members as well as other thinking citizens of Rock county as being pretty "strong" and they ask to be shown the why and wherefor.

OBITUARY

Charles Evans.
Yesterday afternoon at half-past two Charles Evans, a carpenter employed at the Chicago & North-Western shops in this city, passed away peacefully at the Smith hotel, after an illness of but two days' duration.

The cause of his death was a fatal attack of neuritis of the heart. The deceased has been a faithful employee of the company for the past fifteen years, and worked here for the past ten years. His quiet, unassuming nature won for him a host of friends among his fellow workmen, who will be pained to learn of his sudden death.

The deceased was forty-five years of age. Twice a Bride at Sixteen.
Ohio Girl Wedded at 14 Gets Divorce and Will Marry Again.

Sweet sixteen and twice a bride is the record of Miss Bertha M. Crawford, a pretty country lass of Newark, Ohio.

Two years ago Miss Bertha, then 14, slipped off to Covington, Ky., with her youthful sweetheart, Charles C. Sutton, and was married. Parental forgiveness and blessings were bestowed, but within the past year the children became estranged and the girl wife recently commenced action for divorce.

Judge Walter Ervine granted the decree. When it was announced Miss Bertha, then restored to her maiden name, wanted to apply for a new license, but her lawyer, Judge Brister, persuaded her to wait a day. Then she married an old chum, Harry Frens. She says she is sure she has the right man this time.

How Cogell Was Destroyed.
Mr. Oswald Bullard, a cyclo agent at Royston, Herts, England, recently told a strange story in the Probate court of how a cogell in the will of a testator named Edmund Brook Nunn had been destroyed. He said that he was riding a motor-tricycle to London, when the machine caught fire, and he used his coat to put out the flames. The cogell was in the pocket and he carefully opened a brown paper parcel and showed a charred garment. He also said that the testator had given him power to use or destroy the cogell as he liked.

SEEKS TO RECOVER DAMAGES FOR FLOOD

Mrs. Kate Richter Serves Notice of Injury on City—All About a Sewer.

Through her attorneys, Fethers, Jeffries & Mount, Mrs. Kate Richter, formerly Kate Mattick, has served notice of injury upon the city. She claims to have suffered damages on the afternoon and evening of August 9 and the morning of August 10 by the insufficiency and want of repair of certain sewers, and of catch basins in the vicinity of lots 22, 23, and 24, Milwaukee's four adjacent, the same being located at the intersection of West Milwaukee and Pleasant streets. It is related in the notice that prior to the said days the city of Jansville attempted to construct a storm sewer to carry off the surface water collected at a point in front of the premises and did wrongfully, negligently, and carelessly construct such sewer so that it should be inadequate to receive and carry off such surface water. By reason of the openings, conduits, and catch-basins being too small and therefore becoming easily clogged it is stated that the water not carried off rose to a great depth about the premises and flowing against the wall of the hotel building, the cellar and basement, and over the garden, warping and weakening the walls and floors of the former and rendering the latter useless.

THOSE BLUE EYED BELOIT NIMRODS

Are the Big Customers for Hunting Licenses—125 Now Issued.

One hundred and twenty-five hunting licenses have been issued at the office of the county clerk and three-fourths of them are made out to Beloit residents. There must be quantities of game roosting in the environs of the line city or else the whole population has the hunting craze.

The personal descriptions are strangely similar. Everyone of the twelve applicants sent in by Justice Charles Kendall yesterday described the applicant as a man with "blue eyes, dark hair, and a scar on his left thumb."

CLOSE CALL TO A SERIOUS FIRE AT PLANING MILL

Blaze at the Jeffries Plant Occurred Shortly After Twelve O'clock.

A few moments after 12 o'clock today one of the workmen employed at the Jeffries planing mill pulled in a still alarm from the company's plant, and soon a general alarm was sounded at the west side station from box 18. The department arrived in good time and made a gallant fight from the start and after an hour's hard work the flames were under control. The fire originated over the boiler room in some unknown manner. The company felt very fortunate that they did not sustain a heavy loss as it was a right good chance for a smart blaze. The only damage was due to the amount of water used. The pumping station furnished an excellent pressure soon after the alarm was given.

TO PREVENT SEASICKNESS.

Gorman Inventor Thinks His Appliance Would.

And now comes a "preventive of sea sickness—not in the shape of medicine, but in the shape of an invention to control the ship itself and prevent that rolling that makes so many voyagers seek their cabins and wish they hadn't come.

The invention is nothing more than a huge top, kept continually spinning in the inside of the ship. As every boy knows, a top refuses to lie down, tip, lean over or do anything but stand up straight when it is going good and fast.

When it begins to slow down, it wobbles more and more till it falls over.

The force which keeps the top standing up is a lot bigger than one would think. Try to knock it down. You can knock it clear across the room, but as long as it is spinning fast it will stand up.

In the head of Mr. O. Schlick of Hamburg, Germany, the idea sprang of putting such a big top inside a boat that old ocean wouldn't be able to wiggle it about. By fixing the top and bottom of the top's axis in the boat, he makes the boat as steady as the top.

For an ocean liner his "top" would have to be a heavy metal flywheel of about twenty-five feet in diameter.

FATHER GOES TO AID IN SEARCH

Beloit Police Are Still Puzzled Over the Disappearance of Fred Wilby.

Henry Wilby of Madison has searched the Beloit police in their search for Fred Wilby whose mysterious disappearance was recorded in last night's Gazette. Wilby has evidently left no trace behind him and as he was not a drinking man or had any bad habits that might have caused his disappearance, the Beloit and Madison police fear foul play. It may be possible that he became temporarily deranged and wandered away but such a theory is not probable as he was evidently in the best of health just previous to his disappearance.

Width of a Brick.

The size of a man's hand determines the width of a brick, just as the height of an average man determines the number of "hands" to which we shall breed horses. We could probably produce them of nineteen hands, commonly, only the animals would always need a mounting stool or a ladder for the rider's use.—Spectator.

LITTLE FRANCE

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN "THE GREAT LORD HAWKE" WAS KING OF THE SEA

BY CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

Author of "Commodore Paul Jones," "Reuben James," "For the Freedom of the Sea," etc.

CHAPTER I.

IN THE FOG OFF USHANT.

FOR two days H. B. M. brig-of-war Boxer had been groping about in a thick fog off the island of Ushant on the Breton littoral. At least, in default of astronomical observation, that is where Lieut. Philip Grafton, her commander, imagined his ship to be. The Boxer was bound in for Portsmouth, England, with dispatches from Admiral Boscawen, then commanding at Gibraltar. She had made a quick passage from the Straits and had met with no bad luck or misfortune until she had run into the fog near Belle Isle, since which time she had been slowly working her way northward, as the stiff breezes and mist-hidden seas permitted. The dispatches she bore were of grave importance, and haste in their delivery had been enjoined upon the young commander. Therefore, he chafed under the vexatious delays with all the impatience of a sailor to whose progress fogs and calms are obstacles well-nigh insurmountable by his seaphilosophy.

To his impatience was added a vivid consciousness of probable and imminent danger, for the Boxer was drifting about within easy striking distance of the great French naval depot of Brest, which was filled with the capital ships and cruisers of the enemy; and the narrow seas, in the absence of any English fleet nearer than Gibraltar, swarmed with men-of-war coming and going. At that time no English blockade had been established on the French seaboard, and the ships of the "well beloved" king ran in and out of Brest at their pleasure.

So long as the fog held, the English brig was safe from observation and the danger of capture by a ship of superior force was minimized; it amounted to almost nothing in fact. But when the fog lifted—unless it were accompanied by a good breeze, which would scarcely be likely at that season of the year—the Boxer would be at the mercy of anything of sufficient size that happened along. Though young in the service, Lieut. Grafton had earned a well-deserved reputation for daring and skill, and gladly would he have welcomed an opportunity for a brush with a cruiser of a force equal to, or even somewhat greater than, his own. English ships then were accustomed to giving odds; indeed, unless there was some preponderance in force in favor of the French, they took but little credit for a victory. But a vessel which would at all match his own was not likely to appear.

Grafton was one of the few American provincials in the royal naval service. His father had been in command of one of the armed vessels of the squadron of the colony of Massachusetts which had done remarkably good work in Pepperell's successful campaign against Louisbourg in 1755. As a reward for his services on that occasion—services by no means inconsiderable—old John Grafton had been given a commission in the king's navy, and was now a rear-admiral, retired, living in the enjoyment of his honors in his ancestral home in Massachusetts. His son, who had followed his father's profession, also enjoyed the royal favor and had risen rapidly through the various grades of the naval service to the rank of lieutenant. He had, in his brief career, given evidence of superior ability, and it was thought with his influence that he would eventually obtain high rank in the service.

On the morning of the 3d of July, 1764, the young captain was restlessly pacing the weather side of the small quarter-deck of his brig in close consultation with his first lieutenant, a kindred spirit, named Stanhope.

"Dag me, John!" he exclaimed impatiently, dropping the quarter-deck for the nonce, as they were out of hearing of everybody except an old seaman at the wheel, who had sailed with Grafton's father from boyhood and had, naturally, attached himself to the fortunes of the son. "Dash me, but this is vexing! Here we lie tossing about like an empty bottle in these beastly swells and not a thing to tell us where we are or where we are drifting!"

"True, Capt. Grafton," answered the lieutenant, giving his superior his courteous title, "the fog's so thick you could almost cut it. I can't even see the heel of the bowsprit for'ard. 'Tis most annoying."

"Hark! what's that?" cried Grafton, stopping short and catching his subordinate by the arm. "There!" pointing aft, "didn't you hear it? A ship's bell!"

As he spoke the sound of a bell struck, in complete, four times, came faintly toward them through the gray mist-laden air of the morning.

"Ay, surely, I heard it," answered Stanhope, turning about, lifting his hand to his ear as he spoke, and concentrating his attention in the direction of the sound.

"Where do you make it to come from?"

"Why, about there, dead astern, I should say, sir," replied the other, pointing aft.

"Right O, Mr. Stanhope. Pass the word quietly forward for the men to make no noise," said the captain, turning to the midshipman on watch. "It's ten chances to one you'll hear a French ship."

THEY STOOD LISTENING.

of the brig was filled with silent confusion. The men sprang like cats to their stations. The little guns of the vessel were soon cast loose and provided, and, having been double-shotted, were run out again and a good turn taken with the side-locks to help them. The wind was coming stronger now, but still in fitful puffs, from the southwest. Singularly enough, the fog seemed to be rising against the wind.

Presently, by the watchful young commander's direction, the midshipman braced about the yards to take advantage of the rising breeze, and the Boxer began slowly to forge through the water. It was the first time in several days that she had enjoyed good steering way, and all hands watched her travel with feelings of great relief. Before she had gathered much way, however, they heard again the sound which had awakened them to action. Five bells this time came floating up from the southward as before. On this occasion the sound was clearer and more distinct, showing that the approaching vessel had drawn nearer. The deep quality of the tones denoted that the bell was a large one.

"By gad, Stanhope, that bell doesn't swing on anything under a heavy frigate," said Grafton; "we're in for it this time unless we can make some distance with this brisk breeze while the fog holds. What's she making?"

"About two knots, I think, sir," answered Stanhope, looking over the side at the sluggish water slowly drawing past; "maybe two and a half, no more."

"'Tis a cursed slow boat; but British ships are not built for running, they leave that for 'tether fellows. I wish now the fog would hold a little longer. Keep your weather eye lifting there, Jabez," continued Grafton, turning to old Slocum, who still stood at the wheel; "don't lose a bit of it."

"Ay, ay, sir!" replied the old Yankee, shifting his gait as he gave a careful squint at the top-sails, which the wind was scarcely strong enough to fill. "I won't lose none o't, yer honor."

For a few anxious moments the brig held on. Presently, in spite of their desires, the two officers perceived that the fog was indeed going. However, there was nothing to be done. It was still too thick to see anything distinctly, so they held on steadily. At 11 o'clock, from the other ship, they heard again the sound of the bell, which now rang six times. She, too, had been feeling the wind, and was evidently edging along in their wake, which was pure chance, for they had given her no sign of their presence.

"Confound the luck!" said Grafton; "whatever she is, she's right after us. By the sound, I should say we haven't gained a fathom!"

"Lost, rather," suggested Stanhope. "This brig's no goer at all in this sort of breeze, and it's so fitful no one can tell."

"By heaven, the wind has shifted again! We're aback! Shift the helm there! All hands to the lee braces!" cried Grafton, as the wind suddenly swung about and took the ship aback.

Fortunately it was not blowing strong enough to do any damage, although the wind was increasing in force with every moment. But before the Boxer paid off, the fog suddenly lifted. It was brushed away from them as if it had been swept aside by a giant hand. The gray mist in front of them gave place to radiant golden light. The tossing white-capped waves, instead of showing the kindly leaden color of the past few days, were thrown into brilliant blue by the irradiating sun. The brightness was almost dazzling. There did not seem to be a single cloud above them.

"Land ho!" shouted one of the men on the fore-castle, as the mist disappeared.

There before them, and scarcely a mile away, rose the grim cliffs of the forbidding island of Ushant. They could see the breakers crashing and churning in sheets of foam about its feet.

"All hands to the lee braces!" cried Grafton, promptly. "Starboard your helm! Flow the head-sheets, there! Haul over that spanker-sheet. We must get away from that Stanhope!"

"Sail ho!" cried one of the after-guard at the same instant, as the handy little brig spun around on her heel and thrust her blunt nose up toward the wind on the port tack.

There, scarcely two cables' length away from them, they saw the bows of an immense ship, ghostlike, come showing through the fog, which still enshrouded that quarter of the sea.

THINK CONVICT IS MURDERER

Denver Officials Scan Joliet Prison for Slayer of Policeman.

Denver, Colo., Aug. 24.—Chief of Police Delaney of this city has communicated with the warden of the penitentiary at Joliet, Ill., to ascertain whether a prisoner confined there under the name of John Mahran is really Wellington C. Jewell, a former member of the Thirty-fourth United States Infantry, who shot and killed Policeman Thomas C. Clifford and N. E. Griffiths in this city the night of Aug. 13, 1899. The description of Mahran tallies with Jewell. Jewell killed the policeman in a running fight while they were trying to arrest him for a minor offense.

He is not a regular butcher. He purchases meat at wholesale and sells it in quantities to race horse owners, hotels and boarding houses. This is not the first time that his bills have been disputed.

CANNING CHEESE.

Canned Cheese May Soon Be a Staple For Home Trade and Export.

The making of first class cheeses of a standard flavor is attended with many difficulties, although made with material from the same source and under the same conditions. All of these obstacles have not yet been overcome and are repeated from time to time, causing more or less serious loss. Butter-makers struggled through much the same difficulties until the introduction of the cream separator, followed by the use of "starters." The control of butter flavor has been secured by the proper management of organisms, and there is the possibility of equally good results in improved cheese making.

One great difficulty which has been experienced in successfully controlling flavor in cheese is the prevention of undesirable organisms, including mold, from entering during the process of curing. At the Oregon experiment station efforts have been making to obviate this. E. F. Pernot, bacteriologist of the station, says that the first attempt was to coat the cheese with paraffin, which was a step in advance, yet not quite satisfactory owing to the sealing and cracking nature of paraffin, especially when handling the cheese. The next step was to can the curd in hermetically sealed tin cans. The fresh milk was inoculated with a pure culture of organisms grown in sterile milk. The usual processes of cheesemaking were followed, the cheese matted or "cheddared" and the curd packed in round tin cans made to contain one, two and a half or five pounds each.

Superior Curing in Cans.

A good feature of canned cheese is the curing, which obviates the constant cure incident to the ordinary method, for after the cans are placed in the curing room they require no further attention other than to keep the temperature low and constant. Humidity, dryness, vermin or mold cannot affect the cheese. In curing, lots of from six to fifteen cans were filled at a time, so that they might be opened at regular intervals, varying from six weeks to a year. The first can was opened six weeks after being filled, and the cheese for its age was well ripened, of an excellent flavor and odor, and the texture was friable, delicate and quite superior to that of any other cheese. Several cans were opened at each of the various times, and a gradual increase of the delicate flavor was noticeable, but even in a can a year old it did not become strong and rank. There seemed to be a fluid reached in the ripening, after which it remained unchanged. Very naturally there was no rind, no mold and no loss in weight through evaporation, a pound of curd producing a pound of cheese.

Good Shipping Quality.

Several tests give evidence of the shipping quality of this cheese. Two one pound cans were sent by mail to Nowenwang, China, to the United States consul. One was opened, found to be of good quality by the consul and pronounced excellent in flavor and structure by a Russian cheese expert. The other can was returned unopened to the station and found to be unharmed by the trip. An English cheese importer calls this canned cheese "the best quality of Swiss cheese." Details of the processes employed in this interesting innovation in cheesemaking are presented in bulletin No. 78 of the Oregon experiment station, in which Mr. Pernot comments in general upon it as follows:

"It seems as though the present method of making cheese is not in keeping with the exercise in making butter. From the time milk is received at the dairy until the butter is wrapped in paper the hands of a modern dairyman never come in contact with either material or product. In cheesemaking it is handled with the hands throughout the process, and it is not uncommon to see an operator bending over a vat with his hands and arms submerged nearly to the elbows, stirring the curd during the 'cooking' and other parts of the operation. Means may yet be devised by which the curd will be handled with fingered paddles or other implements doing the work of the hands, thus obviating the introduction of many objectionable germs."

Market Demands Sealed Packages.

"The market now demands food to be in sealed packages and not so much in bulk as formerly, and the sale of cheese will be increased when it can be purchased in cans or packages upon which are marked its age and flavor."

"As an article of food for export trade or army use cheese cured in cans would be very desirable, as it is condensed, nutritious and in convenient form for transportation. There are others besides cheddar cheese which could be made and cured in cans. A soft cheese having the consistency of thick cream, that could be spread upon bread, would likely find a ready market in the Orient."

"Several lots of cheese were canned without previously inoculating the milk, and they turned out very well."

One Thing and Another.

That the Michigan fruit crop is all right is indicated by the activity of the fruit box makers, who are preparing for a big strawberry and peach output.

Decatur, Ill., is said to have the only corn oil mill in the country. The oil is extracted by means of a solvent, instead of the old pressure process.

Within the last ten years we have learned that potatoes are not essential by a potato crop. It is the experience of scientists, and seemingly of practical growers, that phosphoric acid has more to do with increasing potato yields than has potash, says Alva Agee in National Stockman.

A ROMANCE OF THE DAYS WHEN THE GREAT LORD HAWKE WAS KING OF THE SEAS.

By CYRUS TOWNSEND BRADY

We trust that none of our readers will miss this literary treat which we have prepared for them: It is just the sort of a story that will interest all classes—clean, interesting, exciting, historical, and by an author who needs no introduction to American readers. The hero of the story is an American, the heroine the daughter of an American mother. The historical incidents on which the story is founded were of vital interest to the struggling American colonies. All of these things make the story of special interest, and we know that our readers will appreciate every line of it.

IT PAYS TO KEEP BOOKS.

Advantages of Definite Records in Poultry Keeping Are Numerous and Helpful.

Poultry keepers who for the first time begin keeping an account with their fowls—a careful record of the outgo and income—are apt to be somewhat surprised at the end of the year. With some the surprise may be very agreeable, while with others it may be the opposite. At any rate, it is apt to result in some changes for the better. If the balance is on the right side and the owner is well satisfied, it is likely to encourage him to do a little better the next year. If the books foot up against him, he will probably make an effort to improve matters, either by giving more attention to the hens, or by going out of the business entirely. The latter, no doubt, would be the most sensible for some. I will tell of a farmer's wife who decided that it would be better to know exactly what the hens were bringing in: so three years ago she procured a poultry and egg record book for the purpose, and she has learned by this bookkeeping that her Lehighs lay about 120 eggs per year, the weight of the eggs being more than four times the hen's own weight, which is about three and one-quarter pounds. She has learned the value of the feed given the hens, and says that the cost of eggs produced in her yards is three and one-half cents in the summer and five cents per dozen in the winter. These fowls are given better care than the average farm flock gets, yet no special pains have been taken with them, only good all-around care. The point to impress upon those who keep poultry is this: If this person had not kept an account with her fowls she would not have known what they were turning in, and it would be difficult to make others around her believe that her hens were doing so well except for those figures in "black and white." Even in a poor market this woman would clear more than a dollar per head on her hens. But there are a great many people who are keeping poultry who are not doing this; no, they are not even making "both ends meet," but they don't know it. Then there are others who say that the hens don't pay for their keep, and are a nuisance, when if they really knew what they were talking about, they would find the hens the most profitable stock on the place. But these are matters that cannot be definitely determined without keeping a book account with the fowls. Many people dislike to be bothered setting anything down; they prefer to let things go on, and guess at the profit or loss. The ones that make the most money, no matter what they are doing, are those who have a system for carrying on their business. They have things in the proper place, and when eggs are gathered it takes less than a minute to set down the number brought in. When the eggs or poultry are sold it is not much trouble to put down the amount received, and at the end of the year it is not much bother to foot it all up, but it is interesting all the way through. Don't take my word for it; try it for one year.—Agricultural Epitomist.

SUMMER POULTRY NOTES.

How to Arrange a Watering Dish for the Chicks That Cannot Be Tipped Over.

Get a small wooden box which will contain the drinking vessel with very little room to spare. Set this box on the floor against the wall and nail securely. Fill the dish with water and set it inside the box, and the most sly hen cannot tip it over. The water does not become soiled quickly, for the hens stand on the box instead of on the edge of the dish.

Verminal of all kinds increase rapidly in warm weather. Use kerosene and whitewash freely and frequently to hold them in check.

To cure or prevent gapes in chickens mix one heaping teaspoonful flowers of sulphur in enough dry corn meal for 30 or 35 chicks. Wet with skim milk or water to make it crumbly and feed once a day. The chicks are fond of it and it has always stopped the gapes with mine.—Farm and Home.

Return to the Old Ways.

Some of the old ways of farming are as good as the new. The old methods tended to conserve and increase the humus content of the soil. Later the fertilizer craze set in, and little attention was paid to preventing the exhaustion of the humus in the soil, which has resulted in the decrease of the average yield of the grain and oil-seed crops. Now, after 50 years of an exhaustive system of stimulated culture, there has come an urgent appeal from scientific sources for farmers to use every possible means to increase humus in the soil by growing and turning under the nitrogen-gathering crops, and to make a more judicious use of commercial fertilizers by using a quantity of them in connection with a greatly increased amount of barn-yard manure.—Farm and Fireside.

Keep Verminal Powder Handy.

On a shelf out of reach of the fowls keep a box of lice powder, a bottle with spraying solution, box of vasoline or carbolic acid and a ball of string. The bottle should be fitted with a notched cork to allow the fluid to escape. A few whiffs of the bottle over the roosts and about walls and floors will keep the house smelling sweet and destroy germs. Crude carbolic acid is one of the best germ destroyers. It should be used with a spray, and one ounce added to each gallon of whitewash.

SAFE BLOWER MURDERS MAN WHO DETECTS HIM

Secures $800 in Plunder and Slays Farm Hand Who Discovers Him While Securing the Booty.

Sherman, Conn., Aug. 24.—Detected in the act of blowing open a safe, it is believed, a man who when hired gave the name of Herbert Schmidt, shot and killed William Taylor, another farm hand, at the summer home of W. H. D. Crittendon of New York city here. Mr. Crittendon and his family had gone on an outing, leaving the two men behind. In the evening Taylor's body was found beside the well.

It is evident Taylor had found Schmidt at the safe in the house when the latter was breaking it open, had fought him there and then retreated outside, where another fight occurred. Schmidt secured about $800 in cash and jewelry.

A letter received from Schmidt's mother at Buchanan, W. Va., has been opened. In it the aged mother pleads with her son to become a better man and to return $75 which he took from a boy there and to pay for a horse which he had stolen.

DISCOVERS SON'S HEAD SEVERED FROM BODY

Chicago Police Officer Finds Decapitated Corpse of His Boy Lying Across Railroad Tracks.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Finding the head of a young man who had been killed by a train, Sergeant Patrick Reilly of the South Chicago police station lifted it up and found it to be the head of his son. The sergeant had been called to the railroad yards at One Hundred and First street and the Lake Shore road in answer to a report that a man had been killed there, and he picked up the severed head in an effort to identify it.

Policeman Leindecker, who had accompanied Reilly to the scene of the accident, was at Reilly's side.

"Why, Pat, it looks like your boy," said Leindecker.

"Yes," Reilly replied, as he faltered, "it is."

"Here, never mind going any farther," said Leindecker, as he took the head from Reilly and led him to the patrol wagon, "I'll take charge of this."

The son was Patrick J. Reilly, 22 years old, who had been employed at the Illinois Steel company's plant in South Chicago. It is believed that while walking through the railroad yards he was struck by a Lake Shore train.

SLAYER RECOVERS HIS REASON

Indiana Man Who Killed Son-in-Law to Begin Life Sentence.

Portland, Ind., Aug. 24.—John W. Terrell, the Petroleum, Ind., murderer, who is confined in the Easthaven asylum for insane, is said to be recovering and will probably be transferred soon to the Michigan City penitentiary to begin a life sentence for the murder of his son-in-law, Melvin Wolfe. Wolfe married Terrell's daughter to avoid prosecution on a paternity charge. It was claimed that after abandoning the wife and baby he would drive past the Terrell home with other girls purposely to taunt his wife. Terrell secreted himself behind some shrubbery one Sunday afternoon last summer and shot Wolfe as he went by in a buggy. One leg was badly shattered. While Wolfe was on the operating table in a doctor's office at the little town of Petroleum Terrell appeared again and blew the young man's head off with a shotgun.
